ILLUMINART'S TRAVELLING LIGHT comes to Port Augusta during a grand SALA PROJECTION ART TOUR

illuminart will be roving regional South Australia in a unique odyssey ... touring over 2000 kilometres to illuminate Silos, Town Halls and Landmarks, to share locally made animated stories and projection art with South Australians.

illuminart and Port Augusta City Council are proud to present the Travelling Light show at Gladstone Square with an exciting projection onto the outside of the Port Augusta Cultural Centre - Yarta Purtli Gallery on Sunday 18 August 2019.

illuminart – well known for projection onto buildings on North Terrace, Adelaide, have previously projected onto the Yarta Purtli Gallery at its launch during Desert Fringe 2009. Port Augusta audiences were treated to a stunning display of projection mapping, and the 2019 event promises similar treats with the latest illumination technology.

The short yet brightly sparkling program of animated projections will light up the Gallery walls and provide all with a free midwinter celebration. The show will also feature animations from across South Australia that connects to Port Augusta and the region.

The dramatic mid-winter show is designed to get a crowd together for a bright colourful and invigorating injection of creativity, combining history, humour and warmth into a single event, celebrating creative storytelling during South Australia's Living Artists Festival.

The free projection event will run for an hour. You are welcome to bring chairs and rugs, setting up in Gladstone Square ready for the show.

"The creative stories depicting South Australia's heritage in a joyful way, are all about appreciating the beautiful and interesting place you live in" said Cindi Drennan, Artistic Director of illuminart. "Our tour is helping to bring some warmth and happiness to people in winter time everywhere it goes. We are very fortunate to be able to bring this project out to Port Augusta during SALA and will be looking forward to sharing this celebration of arts and culture with everyone."

Travelling Light is the final stage of illuminart's Port to Port project, assisted by the Australia Council for the Arts, and supported locally through Port Augusta City Council.

Find out more about the project at www.travellinglight.illuminart.com.au – discover where else the stories will be shared along the touring route.
